CHILLS AND FEVERS.

This seldom we see a radical cure in fever and ague, under the common treatment of quinine, arsenic, and paten medicines so highly extelled by physicians. There are objections to the general use of quinine, as some has beer found to contain arsenic, and the use of it has been followed by swelling of the face, spleen, liver, &c. Another objection is, the disease is vory liable to resur, upon slight exposur or fatigue. The patient will find a permanent cure, or the money refunded, at the German Medical Office of Doctor BROTHERS & GRAY, opposite the Smithsonian Institution, Island.

WESLEY AND HIS COADJUTORS. SELDOM have I taken up a book of biography with which I have been so well pleased and really profited with Wesley and his Coadjutors, by Prof. Larrabee.

which I have been so well pleased and really profited as with Wesley and his Coadjutors, by Prof. Larrabee. Those pure pages sparkle like diamonds, with strange as well as beautiful incidents, touching in turn every chord of the human heart, and arousing its latent energies to deeds of noble daring. Weeley is exhibited as he really was, a most wonderful man; wonderful principally as an agent of Providence in reviving pure religion in the world.

The second volume opens with Charles Wealey, that prince of lyric poots, who is made to pass before the reader so well-defined that he seems to see his form and hear his voice, and be thrilled with his sublime hymns, a rich legacy left to the Church in all after time.

Whitesfield, the peerless orator and devoted Christian, next appears, with his matchless powers, arousing Great Britain and America with an eloquence and unction that literally bore down all before it, turning the people to God by thousands, till from the most degraded—degraded because forsaken of their religious teachers—plants of right-cousness were seen springing up and adorning the garden of the Lord. John Fletcher closes the list of notable worthies in the two volumes before us, and every way worthy is he to do it. He is made to pass along in his own incomparable, beautiful simplicity, with a holiness all but superhuman, possessing taients that an angel might have envised; the acutest and ablest controversialist writer of his own or any subsequent age.—Zion's Herald.

Transition Coal.

Transition Coal.

This rare and valuable Coal is a variety not quite changed into an anthracite, and it has only been discovered (in large quantities) at three places upon our globe, viz: at South Wales, Great Britain; at Donetz, in Russia, near the Black Sea; and at Dauphin and Lebanon counties, Fennsylvania. In the London market this coal commands the highest price. It is now mined upon the large estate (43,000 acress) of the Dauphin and Susquehanna Coal Company, situated in Fennsylvania, and it is nearer to the cities of Baltimore and Washington than the coal of any other region. For easy ignition, durability of fire, complete combustion, easy adaptation to the temperature of the weather, and its great power in generating heat, it is the near coal in the world. It has the inflammability of the bituminous coal, with the cleanliness of the anthracite, and a greater durability than either. It burns without making any soot or visible smoke, and the combustion is so complete that it retains the fire until all the coal is consumed. Not so with the anthracites, especially the hard and heavy kinds. They do not burn up, and hence the common troublesome practice of sifting their ashes to obtain more fuel. In burning the Transition Coal there is no weath, for the small coals made by handling, burn as well as ordinary coal. All should be burned together. If screened at all the dust only should be taken out.

A very erroneous impression exists with many persons taken out.

A very erroneous impression exists with many persons that the heaviest coals are the most economical for ordinary purposes. This might be the case if coals were sold by measurement, but never when they are sold by weight. In Taylor's valuable work, (Statistics of Coal,) the details are given to show that 31 pounds of a free-burning red sch yielded more heat to a room in 16 hours, than 37 pounds of a heavy white ash coal, making the red ash, at $6 50, to be more economical than the white ash at $4 61 per ton. Any person accustomed to use these heavy coals will be astonished at the saving which can be made in burning the lighter kinds, when tested by the weight and burnt in a suitable manner.

ished at the saving which can be made in burning the lighter kinds, when tested by the weight and burnt in a suitable manner.

An apprehension exists with some that the free-burning coals have a tendency to clinker. Now, as a general rule, no coal will clinker unless a greater draught be applied to it than the coal naturally requires. No one would think of applying a bellows constantly to a fire made of seasoned hickory or oak wood, and it would be equally as absurd to apply a blast constantly to a free-burning coal. But the heavy white ash anthracites cannot be burnt without a powerful draft, and without using a larger quantity of coal than the temperature of the weather sometimes requires. Various patterns of stoves, furnaces, cooking ranges, &c., are invented annually to conquer this difficulty, but it has never been done with complete success. In every contrivance, however, which has been invented to burn coal, the transition variety will make a beautiful fire, and no complaint will ever be made to a manufacturer or seller of grates or stoves when this coal is used. The draft alone is to be regulated by a damper. In introducing this new coal for the first time, prepared as it now is by steam power machinery for domestic use, it may give greater condience to the buyer to say that the celebrated free-burning red ash veins in the Feach Orchard district, near Pottsville, are a continuation of the Dauphin veins, and they approach the nearest in value to the Transition coal.

Shipments of the Transition coal have already been made to the District of Columbia, and it can be obtained at retail from the following persons:

Wm. T. Dove, Washington. Woodford Stone, Washington. F. Magrader, do Hunsberger & Co., do Wm. Warder, do Myers & Baker, Georgetown.

Orders for this coal by the cargo, as well as for the semi-bituminous and anthracite coals, mined by the Dauphin and Suquehama Coal Cempany, will be promptly executed by ADAMS FOSTER, Agent, Office southwest corner Baltimore and South sts.
